

ERP strategy knowledge transfer free...

Zach Davis 1 posts since

Aug 4, 2010

The Correct analysis of data is very important for any company to grow in its domain I have seen the trend of organizations and the challenges they face during the allocation of the resources due to the lack of correct information and analytical skills of the systems incorporated in the organization I have a important piece of information to share on ET that there is company called Senturus Inc who are experts on BI and ERP systems they are conducting the webinar this month and I am sharing a link below hope it will help which is free of cost to attend it just that they ask for you your time at end of the day to share their knowledge of expertise I never miss their webinars

Webinar is the most convenient medium to get the overview of the present situations in the business environment. These webinars are conducted as paid webinars and free webinars. Paid webinars often does not make a sense because investing time and money without knowing the people who are delivering the webinar is a risk for the first time to attend but free webinars can actually make a difference and worth attending because you can have a rough of idea of how good is the company with regards to the knowledge that they carry to give the service in this sector. Senturus is one of the kinds which will allow you to attend their webinar free of cost and then create a perception accordingly. We have a webinar this month on 12 at 10 A.M to 11 A.M PST and many other webinars all free of cost scheduled only to help the attendants and make them aware of different challenges faced by organizations in ERP and BI. For further details of these free webinars anyone can visit on www.senturus.com and find the resources/ events to get more details. <https://www1.gotomeeting.com/register/653818304>